

Phuoc Dai Vo

Child and Adolescent Health Service
Community Ambassador

About me

I moved to Australia from Vietnam more than 15 years ago, as a student. I am now an active committee member of the Vietnamese Community in Australia – WA chapter (VCA), as well as a Vietnamese language teacher and interpreter. I teach children aged 6 to 15 years because I am passionate about helping them learn their mother language and stay connected to their Vietnamese cultural heritage.

How I want to have an impact

I am proud to represent my community as a CAHS Community Ambassador. I will use my voice to share knowledge and assist Vietnamese children and families better understand the health system and how to engage with it.

I want to build trust, not just for the Vietnamese community, but for all families from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds.

Why I'm passionate about community representation and inclusive child health services

In my culture, there is an old saying, 'every single child is a seed of the whole society'.

It means all children, regardless of their background or socio-economic status, have a right to be treated with love and respect. They should be offered compassionate, flexible care in culturally safe environments, helping them to live full and healthy lives.
